

Alexis B. Outlaw, MSM, SHRM-CP

For the last 20 years, Alexis B. Outlaw has held professional positions focusing on the functions of Human Resources and Education (K-12 & Higher Ed). Outlaw's experience as both an employee and freelance business consultant in executive-level recruitment, talent acquisition, diversity equity and inclusion, and employee incentive programming has helped shift the organizational culture of various organizations.

Outlaw acquired her Master's of Science in Management from Cardinal Stritch University, her Bachelor's from Alverno College, and is a SHRM-CP certified business professional. She is a proud graduate of a variety of leadership programs hosted in the Milwaukee area including the: African American Leadership Program, Forward 48, and United Way's Project Lead.

Outlaw serves as an Assistant Professor of Business Administration & Human Resources at Mount Mary University, located in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Before this, Outlaw was appointed a Co-Director of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion at Alverno College, known for its abilities-based curriculum. It has been a pleasure for Outlaw to empower others through education. Outlaw volunteers her time through service and is currently the College Relations Director for the Wisconsin State SHRM Council, the Vice President of Membership for the Milwaukee Chapter of the National Association for African Americans in Human Resources \(NAAHR-MKE\), teaches and mentors students to national SHRM certification, the Vice-President of Exfabula, and serves as the Board Secretary of Exploit No More.

In her spare time, Outlaw enjoys watching sports (Go Milwaukee Bucks, Go! Go Seattle Seahawks, Go!), playing golf and pickleball, cooking, hiking, and volunteering her time hosting and MCing social events. She finds the most joy in spending time traveling and exploring the world with her twelve-year-old son, future NBA all-star, and investor, Che (like Hey but with a C).
